

PRIVACY POLICY

Riverlife Baptist Church 30 331 391 636 (“Riverlife”) recognises that the right to privacy of all people is very important.

This Privacy Policy sets out the key elements of how we comply with the Australian Privacy Principles, particularly in terms of the treatment of personal information that we collect and/or hold.

Riverlife must comply with the Australian Privacy Act, and the Australian Privacy Principles, as amended from time to time.

Acknowledgement of our Privacy Policy

Our obligations under the Privacy Amendment (Enhancing Privacy Protection) Act 2012 is to comply with the Australian Privacy Principle 1.4 which requires us to set out our policies on the management of personal information in a clearly expressed document which is free of charge to anyone who asks for it.

Without limiting the generality of the above statement, a person’s use of the Riverlife website constitutes an acknowledgement that they have been made aware of our privacy policy.

We respect your personal information and your right to privacy. This Privacy Policy describes the information that may be collected by us and how we protect your personal information.

Should there be, in any specific case, any inconsistency between this statement and the Act, this statement shall be interpreted, in respect of that case, to give effect to, and comply with the legislation.

The kind of Personal Information we collect and hold

Personal information means information we hold about you from which your identity is either apparent or can be reasonably determined.

We may collect non-personal information from you, such as browser type, operating system, and web pages visited to help us manage our web site.

Many of our church services & conferences are recorded. Testimonials, baptism services and leadership meetings are further examples of recordings that may be made by Riverlife.

Images of people attending and participating in our services &/or conferences, or other recordings, for example as above, may be used or shown in part for promotional purposes, resource material and commercial activities.

By attending such church services and or conference sessions, or being involved in testimonials for example, you agree to Riverlife using your image and personal information in these recordings.

How we collect and hold Personal Information

We use various internet technologies to manage our website, Facebook pages and certain online products and services. We do not use these technologies to collect or store personal information unless you have opted in to such a feature.

Our Internet server logs the following information which is provided by your browser for statistical purposes only:

- The type of browser and operating system you are using
- Your Internet Service Provider and top level domain name
- The address of any referring web site; and
- Your computer's IP address.

All this information is used by Riverlife for aggregated statistical analyses or systems administration purposes only. No attempt will be made to identify users of their browsing activities, except where required by or under law.

Links to other sites

Riverlife's website may contain links to other external sites. We are ultimately not responsible for the privacy practises or the content of such external web sites. We encourage you to read and understand the privacy policies on those websites prior to providing any information to them.

Searches

Search terms that you enter when using our search engine are collected, but are not associated with any other information that we collect.

The purposes for which we collect, hold, use and disclose Personal Information

We use personal information you provide only for purposes consistent with the reason you provided it, or for a directly related purpose. Generally we will not use your personal information to market to you unless we have either your implied or express consent but in situations where it is impractical to obtain your prior consent, you have an ability to opt out of such future communications.

We do not share your personal information with other organisations unless you give us your express consent, or where sharing is otherwise required or permitted by law, or where this is necessary on a temporary basis to enable our contractors to perform specific functions.

Generally, Riverlife will collect personal information directly from you, and only to the extent necessary to provide a product or service, or to carry out our internal administrative operations.

We may collect personal information from you when:

- You fill in an application form, or register for a conference or event;
- Deal with us over the telephone;
- E-mail us;
- Ask us to contact you after visiting our web site; or
- Have contact with us in person.

You may also be able to transact with us anonymously where this is lawful and practicable. We will collect personal information from you by lawful and fair means and not in an unreasonably intrusive way.

We will use your personal information only for the particular purpose that you provided it, or for a directly related purpose. We may otherwise use your personal information where that other use is:

- Required or permitted by law; or
- With your express or implied consent.

Pastoral care & broader Riverlife connectedness

If you provide your personal information to Riverlife, you consent to being contacted generally for pastoral care and follow up by Riverlife. The personal information you provide to Riverlife may be shared within Riverlife for the development of other products and services of Riverlife, and to improve our general ability to assist church attendees and the wider community.

Video/Photographs

Images of individuals in photographs or film are treated as personal information where the person's identity is clear or can reasonably be worked out from that image. All photographs and video footage of individuals will be used by Riverlife solely for church related purposes including at times promotion.

Both video and still photography are an active part of the church life, activities and services. Riverlife uses video and still photography for church related purposes or promotions. An individual's consent will be sought if the photograph or video records sensitive information about the individual. In other cases, Riverlife will seek the consent of individuals where it is practically possible to do so.

If you would like to have a video or still image removed from any material, please contact us using the contact details set out below.

Direct marketing and your privacy

From time to time we may use the personal information we collect from you to advise you of, for example, conferences, events, products and/or services, which we believe may be of interest to you. We may then contact you to let you know about these products and services and how they may benefit you. We will generally only do this with your consent and you are able to opt out of receiving such information in the future.

Direct mail

Where we use your personal information to send you marketing information via the post we may do so with your implied consent or, if this is impracticable, you are able to opt out of receiving such future communications.

Electronic marketing

Where we use your personal information to send you marketing information by e-mail, SMS, MMS or other electronic means we may do so with your express or implied consent. You may give us your express consent by, for example, ticking a box on an electronic or paper form where we seek your permission to send you electronic or other marketing information. Consent may be implied from our existing business relationship or where you have directly or indirectly provided us with your electronic address.

Your privacy preferences and choices

You may contact us at any time to opt out of receiving personalised marketing contacts from Riverlife. You may also instruct us at any time to remove any previous consent you provided to receive marketing communications from us.

Security

Riverlife will take reasonable steps to keep secure any personal information which we hold and to keep this information accurate and up to date. Personal information is stored in a secure server or secure files.

The Internet is not a secure method of transmitting information. Accordingly, Riverlife cannot accept responsibility for the security of information you send to or receive from us over the Internet or for any unauthorised access or use of that information.

Information sharing

We have a strict duty to maintain the privacy of all personal information we hold about you. However, certain exceptions do apply. For example, where disclosure of your personal information is:

- Authorised or required by law, e.g. disclosure to various government departments and agencies such as the Australian Taxation Office, Centrelink, Child Support Agency or disclosure to courts under subpoena.
- In the public interest, e.g. where a crime, fraud or misdemeanour is committed or suspected, and disclosure against the customer's rights to confidentiality is justified.
- With your consent, which may be implied or express, verbal or written.

Use of third party service providers

When we temporarily provide personal information to companies who perform services for us, such as specialist information technology companies, mail houses or other contractors to Riverlife we require those companies to protect your personal information as diligently as we do.

Disclosure of Personal Information to overseas recipients

If Riverlife transfers personal information to countries outside Australia, we will only do so in compliance with all applicable Australian data protection and privacy laws.

Riverlife will take reasonable steps to protect personal information no matter what country it is stored in or transferred to. We will have procedures and data transfer contracts as appropriate to help ensure this.

Updating your information

It is inevitable that some personal information which we hold will become out of date. We will take reasonable steps to ensure that the personal information which we hold remains accurate and, if you advise us of a change of details, we will amend our records accordingly.

Access to your Personal Information

Riverlife will, upon your request, and subject to applicable privacy laws, provide you with access to your personal information that is held by us. However, we ask that you identify, as clearly as possible, the type/s of information requested. Riverlife will deal with your request to provide access to your personal information in a reasonable time of receipt of your request.

Riverlife will not charge you for lodging such a request but we may recover from you our reasonable costs incurred in supplying you with access to this information.

Exceptions

Your right to access your personal information is not absolute. In certain circumstances, the law permits us to refuse your request to provide you with access to your personal information, such as circumstances where:

- Access would pose a serious threat to the life or health of any individual;
- Access would have an unreasonable impact on the privacy of others;
- The request is frivolous or vexatious;
- The information relates to a commercially sensitive decision making process;
- Access would be unlawful; or
- Access may prejudice enforcement activities, a security function or commercial negotiations.

Freedom of Information laws

In addition to privacy laws, you may have rights to access your personal information contained in certain Riverlife documents. Details on how to apply for access to these documents are contained in the Freedom of Information Act 1982 (FOI Act).

Contacts & complaints

Riverlife is committed to working to obtain a fair resolution of any complaint or concern about privacy.

To contact us with a compliment or complaint or a privacy question, you can:
